PREFACE

(KeSIC) marks an important milestone in our country's development arena. Statistics play a major role in monitoring development and measuring achievement of our long term agenda, Vision 2030 and the five year Medium Term Plans (MTPs). Kenya National Bureau of Statistics, has the responsibility of coordinating the National Statistical System (NSS), and depends on the various Ministries, Departments and Agencies to provide the much needed information necessary for planning.

The United Nations Statistics Division provides the international standards, which are then adopted by the country statistics offices for use at country level. It is commendable that Kenya has made strides in domesticating the international standard. KeSIC accords us the opportunity to have adequate information to measure performance of various industries and enables us as a country to identify the key drivers of growth. We note that there are various government agencies that are generating statistics in the course of their administrative functions. For ease of updating the statistics and in order to allow comparability across the NSS, the KeSIC aims at creating a coherent system for harmonization of the information generated. For instance, during registration of businesses, which happens across all counties, it is important to clearly identify the economic activities that emerging and thriving in economy. Furthermore, as businesses close down, it is important to note which sectors are most affected.

Right from the beginning, there has been wide consultation across all the sectors. The classification standard therefore represents the general position of activities in the country and should be the reference document for statistical and administrative purposes. We appeal to all stakeholders to embrace the use of KeSIC and recommend that it should be mandatory for all registration services at national and devolved levels to follow the criteria as detailed in KeSIC.

TECHNICAL NOTE

Kenya National Bureau of Statistics (KNBS) is the Government agency with the mandate for planning, authorizing, coordinating and supervising all official statistical programmes undertaken within the National Statistical System (NSS); establishing standards and promoting the use of best practices and methods in the production and dissemination of statistical information across the NSS. Official statistical data are required to be collected and presented according to the classification designed to facilitate their use for national economic policy formulation and for international comparison. The use of a classification standard allows for comparability of statistics available from various sources, on different aspects of the economy, and usability of such data for economic analysis.

One such standard that is used during the collection and presentation of statistics is the International Standard Industrial Classification (ISIC) of all economic activities. The fourth revision of ISIC (ISIC Rev 4) was considered and approved by the Statistical Commission in March 2006 as the internationally accepted standard. This revision replaced the third revision of the classification and its update, Revision 3.1, which had been in use since 1989 and 2002, respectively. The first revision of ISIC was in 1958 followed by revisions in 1968, 1989, 2002 and finally the current revision of 2008.

The main purpose of ISIC is to provide a set of activity categories that can be utilised for the collection and reporting of statistics according to type of economic activities. ISIC Rev 4 provides guidance to countries in developing national activity classifications and has become an important tool for comparing statistical data on economic activities at the international level.

To ensure that the ISIC is relevant to the national situation, the Ministry of Labour and Social Protection, State Department for Labour, and KNBS undertook a series of stakeholders' consultative workshops to domesticate the International Standard Industrial Classification for All Economic Activities (ISIC Rev 4). Stakeholders within the NSS and beyond were consulted during the domestication process, which culminated into the Kenya Standard Industrial Classification (KeSIC) document that reflects economic activities in Kenya's socio-economic sphere. I urge the compilers and users of statistics to use KeSIC extensively and also feel free to send comments/observations based on the experience of use, which would go a long way to improve on future classifications.

Finally, let me register my appreciation to all stakeholders for their valuable contributions in coming up with the KeSIC document. In particular, I am very grateful to Ministry of Labour and Social Protection, for the financial and technical support during the whole domestication process.

Abstract

A correspondence table is a useful tool for the linking of statistical classifications. In particular, correspondence tables are used for comparing statistical data collected and presented using different classifications. A correspondence table systematically explains where, and to what extent, the categories in one classification may be found in other classifications, or in earlier versions of the same classification. The correspondence tables create links between classifications for continuity of comparability in light of classification changes over time as well as due to use of domesticated versions that might not allow for a one to one mapping of the relevant categories. Correspondence tables between different versions of the same classification are used to describe the detailed changes that have taken place in the revision process.

The Kenya Standard Industrial Classification (KeSIC) of all economic activities is envisaged to be the reference national economic classification for collection and presentation of statistics by all producers and providers of official data and the correspondence table will certainly be useful in guiding the processes of harmonization and standardization in Kenya. In this context, this publication serves the detailed correspondences between KeSIC and two of the previous classifications (ISIC Rev 2 and ISIC Rev 3.1) and vice versa. The correspondence between ISIC Rev 2 to ISIC Rev 4 was deemed necessary due to the significant number of users in the country who were yet to adopt ISIC Rev 3.1 or ISIC Rev4.

Methodologically, correspondence tables describe the way in which the value sets of classifications are related, by describing how the units classified to the groups defined for one classification would be classified in other classifications. However, a one-to-one link between versions might not always be possible, or only for a limited number of codes of the classification and/or at a more aggregated level. This is mostly so because as economies evolve new economic activities emerge and gain significance leading to the need to change the structure of classification, for instance to introduce new Sections in the hierarchy. A case in point is the evolution of the Information Communication Technologies (ICTs) that led to creation of a new Section in ISIC Rev 4. Consequently, a one-to-one link is therefore not possible in relation to ICT between ISIC Rev 4 and ISIC Rev 2 as well as ISIC Rev 3.1 for some classes.

The KeSIC maintained, Sections, Division and Groups as defined in ISIC Rev 4 while new categories were introduced at Class level. In addition, two sub-classes (Sub-class 1 and Sub-class 2) were introduced to accommodate Kenyan characteristics as well users' needs. The main criteria of introducing a new category was largely informed by relative importance of the activities in the economy. For instance, growing of coffee and tea are lumped together with other beverage crops under "0127 Growing of beverage crops". However, each major crop was given a category due to their significance in Kenya's economy. In general, economic activities/industries with significant contributions to the economy are given separate codes and/or elevated to higher level of classification.
